

It is a common finding in the elderly, especially in the lower lip. It is a benign lesion, but it can be cosmetically bothersome. It is usually treated with cryotherapy or laser therapy. It is not a cancer, but it can be a precursor to cancer. It is important to have it checked out by a dermatologist. It is a common finding in the elderly, especially in the lower lip. It is a benign lesion, but it can be cosmetically bothersome. It is usually treated with cryotherapy or laser therapy. It is not a cancer, but it can be a precursor to cancer. It is important to have it checked out by a dermatologist.