

~~tufted hair folliculitis is a chronic inflammatory condition of the scalp characterized by multiple hairs growing from a single follicle. It is caused by a bacterial infection, typically Staphylococcus aureus, which leads to the formation of a tuft of hairs. The condition is often associated with a history of trauma or surgery to the scalp. Treatment involves the use of antibiotics and surgical removal of the tufted hairs.~~