

Linear Epidermal Nevus

Linear epidermal nevi, or verrucous nevi, may be either localized or systematized.

In the localized type,

which is present usually ~~between~~ ~~unilaterally~~ ~~at birth~~ ~~in its~~

In the systematized type, papillomatous hyperkeratosis is a linear isodermic

Localized and, more commonly, systematized linear epidermal nevi may be associated with skeletal def

The presence of a basal cell epithelioma within a linear epidermal nevus has been observed occasionally

Histopathology .

□ Nearly all cases of the localized type of linear epidermal nevus and some cases keratosis .

Occasionally in cases of the localized type, keratosis frequently in cases of the generalized type, particularly found to occur in several other conditions as well (see Isolated and Disseminated Epidermolytic Acantho

In some instances, histologic examination of unilateral linear lesions reveals features of acantholytic dys

Differential Diagnosis .

□ The histologic picture of a benign papilloma, as found in most cases of linear ep

