

Weber Christian Disease

Clinical Presentation .

□ Weber-Christian disease now is a nonspecific clinical impression but is a pathol

□

Histopathology .

□ The histopathologic appearance itself is not sufficiently specific to exclude other has depressed and indurated clinical lesions. Fibroblasts, collagen, and scattered lymphocytes and a few

Systemic lesions occur in some cases of Weber-Christian disease and serve to distinguish this disease

Pathogenesis. If Weber-Christian disease exists as a distinct disease, the cause is unknown, b

Differential Diagnosis .

□ The histologic appearance of Weber-Christian disease is also distinctive. It features

□ has some of the clinical features but histologically has a lymphoid infiltrate with n have ingested sufficient ~~leukocytes~~ neutrophils, and eosinophils to be called

Subcutaneous panniculitis ~~Tuberculous~~ lymphocytic cytophagic panniculitic reaction, so lymphoma needs to